Kenneth Kaiza, United Kingdom, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: N/A. Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Who do you think you are? Who do people say you are? This book takes the reader through chapters which is referred to as dials as it encourages the reader to answer these questions for themselves precisely and accurately. It projects life as though it is holding a triangle of stories and invites the reader to enter the different rooms of the book with their own workbooks, as they grapple to re-identify who they are. Using the 24-hours of the clock to represent the journeys we all make through life; the book emphasises that, whether we are Christians or non-Christians, male or female, educated or uneducated, we all journey through this planet earth; and serve a purpose, to live and to die. Time also invites you to read it with an open mind, in order to relax, enjoy, deliberate and take part in the exercises and respond in a manner that would be appropriate in bringing about the change as you re-identify who you are. One of the tools the book has used in accomplishing its goal, is the act of encouragement as it frequently reminds the reader that it is important to make out time each day to stop and reflect; the need to step out of our comfort zones and perhaps begin to look at life from a different perspective, which we may have ignored or which we were not aware of; the need to try on different pairs of lenses which would enable us to become aware of other options that might be open to us, from which the author has benefited from. The author expresses her sincere wish in the introduction of the book...
