The significance of these tests is illustrated in the interrelation and phasing of the controls with changes in the relative wind direction. The comparison of the simulation and flight-test results is shown in figure 23. The results need to be considered con-currently with the previously discussed In-ground-effect control-position data. , Fidelity in this area is necessary to simulate high-workload tasks such as the hover and landing. The results are satisfactory and indicate a reasonable fidelity with the aircraft performance. Static longitudinal stability characteristics for both a 70-knot and a 110-knot airspeed trim point were compared, and the data are presented in figure 24. These data, particularly the force gradient, affect the pilots ability to fly a selected airspeed without retiming. Around the 110-knot trim, the force...
